

Winning the 2022 FMANZ Facilities Manager of the Year Award was a highlight of my professional career. I was excited to be an FMANZ finalist and be recognised for all the mahi (work) I have done.

I couldn't have achieved what I have without the support of my team, and we celebrated this win together. We also took the opportunity to acknowledge this accomplishment across our organisation and raise more awareness about what we do.

I highly encourage you to acknowledge the incredible work of your Facilities Managers by nominating them for the FMANZ Facilities Manager of the Year Award. It's an award that you can take professional pride in achieving.

Brendan Tracey MFMANZ, Facilities Manager of the Year 2022

Being the Emerging Facilities Manager of the year for 2022 has meant a lot to me personally as well as professionally.

This has been a significant milestone in my career and has led to further opportunities to grow as a manager, I have gained more confidence within my career and have made more connections within the industry.

To have my hard work and achievements recognised by this award has been a huge accomplishment, I would recommend that anyone nominate their colleague or themselves for this award.

Courtney Swann, Emerging Facilities Management Professional of the Year 2022

The FMANZ award meant the world to me! It gave me the recognition and endorsement of years of hard work. I was not only recognised internally by my organisation but from FMérs and professionals all over New Zealand. I highly recommend others to participate as the awards give you recognition in the industry and acknowledge the achievements and great work you are doing!

Simi Mukherjee CFMANZ, Facilities Manager of the Year 2020

I can tell you that winning an award from the Facilities Management Association of New Zealand (FMANZ) can be a great honor and a significant recognition for your hard work and dedication as a facilities manager. From my experience to date, it can also provide a boost to one's professional profile and increase networking opportunities within the industry which ultimately leads to career growth. I would highly recommend nominating someone else or oneself for an FMANZ award, as it can be a valuable way to acknowledge and celebrate the achievements of individuals or teams in the field of facility management.

Marius Nortje MFMANZ, Facilities Manager of the Year 2021

As an FMANZ award recipient, the Cushman & Wakefield Hamilton Trades Services team can attest to the positive impact of winning the Service Provider of the Year 2022 award.

We highly recommend that others nominate themselves or someone else for one of the five awards, as it serves as valuable recognition of our achievements and contribution to the field of facilities management and everything that goes into the positive outcomes the industry delivers.

It is an excellent way to showcase the dedication to the profession and to be acknowledged for the hard work and effort that goes into the delivery for our clients.

Jason Blackmore, Director Facilities Services, Cushman & Wakefield

FMANZ is the pre-eminent membership body for facilities managers. Winning the Service Provider of the Year in 2021 from FMANZ provided us with recognition, by the people that really matter, for the hard work being done by the team. We are all really focused on servicing clients and running our business. Unfortunately, it's too easy to forget to take stock, and enjoy the result of all that work with the team. Clients really value it as well – they hear your name and know their peers have recognised you, and that you care about producing good results.

Lincoln Watson, CEO, ESP